

Daniel Paul

Gray

In October 2019, newborn Daniel Paul was diagnosed with Hirschsprung's disease. The condition affects the large intestine and causes problems with passing stool. At just seven days old, Daniel Paul had surgery to remove a blockage and place a colostomy bag. Daniel Paul, now four-years-old, has had countless inpatient visits to Beverly Knight Olson Children's Hospital. When talking about the children's hospital staff, Bethany, Daniel Paul's mom says, "They are absolutely our family. As a little boy, Daniel Paul thought they were our family because he's spent so much time with them. The staff always go above and beyond to take care of us."

Today, Daniel Paul loves playing with his monster trucks and plays baseball and football with his friends.
